LEGACY COMMUNITY HEALTH'S JACK WINN HONORED WITH STATEWIDE AWARD

Austin, TX (October 16, 2024) – The Texas Association of Community Health Centers (TACHC), a private, not-for-profit membership organization dedicated to advancing equitable access to quality health care across Texas, is proud to present Jack Winn, Vice President of Program Development at Legacy Community Health, with the 2024 TACHC Emerging Leader Award.

This prestigious award recognizes exceptional Texas health center staff for their outstanding contributions to enhancing patient and staff experiences, a crucial element of the value-based care model.

The TACHC Emerging Leader Award celebrates rising stars in Texas health centers, fostering new leadership to advance quality, community-centered health care. Nominated by Legacy Community Health CEO Dr. Robert Hilliard, Jr., Jack demonstrated exemplary leadership in developing a robust employee wellness program to address the root causes of burnout and turnover while fostering a supportive, inclusive workplace culture. His work has strengthened our organization and positively impacted the community we serve.

"We are incredibly proud of Jack's dedication to connecting our communities to health, every day in every way," said Hilliard. "His collaborative efforts with our clinical teams have strengthened our organization's ability to provide affordable and accessible health care to all and serve as a model for other health centers aiming to improve staff well-being and patient care."

Jack is one of seven community health center staff members to receive the 2024 Emerging Leader Award. The award will be presented at the TACHC Annual Conference in Fort Worth October 21 - 23, 2024.

In response to receiving the award, Jack stated, "It's important to me that every individual, regardless of income, race, or health status, has access to the same high-quality care I would expect for myself and my family. Expanding access to care and breaking down barriers is at the heart of everything we do, and I'm proud to contribute to that mission."
